Take Action Now: Ask Your Delegate to Support HB 1338

Every year, thousands of Virginians experience an acquired brain injury from car crashes, falls, stroke, overdose, domestic violence, or other medical events. Emergency care may save a life, but recovery does not end at the hospital.

Right now, many private insurance plans in Virginia do not reliably cover this care.

When coverage is denied, survivors face delayed or incomplete recovery, families shoulder overwhelming medical bills just as income is disrupted, and caregivers are forced to leave the workforce. Too often, people who could have regained independence instead rely on Medicaid, disability benefits, or long-term institutional care—at far greater cost to taxpayers.

House Bill 1338 fixes this problem.

Message Body

I am writing to respectfully urge your support for House Bill 1338, which has been assigned to your committee and will be considered in the coming days. Your role on this committee places you in a critical position to determine whether thousands of Virginians will have access to the care they need to recover after brain injury. This Bill is important to me because [enter your statement here.]

Message Body

[traumatic brain injury from a car crash, I depended on cognitive rehabilitation to relearn basic skills like planning my day, managing emotions, and staying organized. When my insurance denied continued therapy, my progress stalled, and I struggled to regain the independence I had worked so hard for. Access to consistent cognitive rehab isn't optional for survivors like me – it's what determines whether we can return to our lives, our families, and our communities.]

House Bill 1338 fixes this problem.

HB 1338 would require private insurance plans to cover medically necessary cognitive rehabilitation and related brain injury services, aligning insurance coverage with modern medical evidence and clinical standards. The bill protects appropriate utilization review while ensuring decisions are made by clinicians with brain injury expertise and includes an expedited appeals process to prevent harmful delays in care.

This is a people-first, fiscally responsible solution that:

- Helps survivors return to work or school
- Keeps people in their homes and communities
- Reduces long-term public costs tied to disability and institutional care
